the host school for the spring section meeting of the California Junior College Student Government Conference as the C.J.C.S.C.C. held its twelfth biannual meeting in Fresno, November 15, 16, and 17. Six delegates from the local college took part in the conference.

Hartnell sent George Jackson and Betty Cunningham as delegates to the affair; and Bob Adams, Bob Balkow, Jim Hitchcock, and JoAnn Valine attended as observers. Mr. Jerry Girdner accompanied the group.

More than 400 representatives from about 60 junior colleges were represented at the conference, which is a biannual conference of all student government organizations in the state.

Hartnell was co-sponsor with Monterey Peninsula College of an amendment that placed both colin the northern section of the C.J.C.S.C.C. Previously the two schools were technically in the central section but acted with the northern area.

About 20 junior colleges in the northern section are expected to take part in the section meeting next spring. The group will discuss problems of student government affecting the section and will help formulate the agenda of the state meeting, which will be held in San Francisco next spring.

At the above-mentioned conference, George Jackson was elected northern section president and state vice-president. Jackson instigated the change of M.P.C. and Hartnell College to the northern section in future conferences of this sort.

New Spanish Course

A new Spanish course is being offered next semester to those students now in Spanish I. The course will be given daily for six weeks for one unit only. Spanish 101 will not fulfill part of the 16 required units of university work.

Purpose of this class is to help students get over the hard aspects of Spanish 1. They will be given a chance to ask questions not or-dinarily asked in the regular class. No text will be required.

Ducats On Sale For Winter Ball

Mission Ranch in Carmel will be the scene of the 1951 Winter Ball. The affair will be held on Saturday, December 15, and dinner and dancing will continue from 9 p.m.

Sally McAnaney, commissioner of social activities, has announced that bids will be $7.00 per couple this year. For those who wish to dance but will not be able to come early enough for dinner, there will be dance bids on sale for $2.00. Bids may be purchased in the main hall or from Sally McAnaney during the next two weeks.

The same orchestra that played for the Homecoming dance, Wayne Walker's, will be on hand to supply music for this affair.

Christmas has been chosen as the heme for the dance and decorations will be done by a committee headed by Miss McAnaney. Serving on the committee are Betty Ann Cunningham, Pat Temple, and Cathleen Jennings. "Other help on the Winter Ball will be greatly ap-preciated," announced Micc McAna-

A break to budget wise fellows is the fact that corsages will be included in the $7.00 bid.

Friends of Music To Host Choir

Appearing as guests of the local Friends of Music Club on the evening of Tuesday, December 4, at the Salinas high school auditorium, will be the Hartnell College choir, presenting the first of the winter concerts.

Selections scheduled for the program are "Jesu, Priceless Treasure," by M. N. Lundquist, and based on Johann Cruger's "Chorale Melody"; "O Magnum Mysterium," a fifteenth century piece by Tomas Luis daVittoria; "Fanfare for Christmas Day," by Martin Shaw; "Lullay My Liking," arranged from a "Medieval Anthology," by Gustav Holst;

The fired-up Panthers rallied to score twice in the final nine minutes of the roughly-fought skirmish. Both tallies came by way of the stratosphere — Elmer Valli hitting Marty Norman and Tom Grant with perfect strikes and consecutive touchdowns.

Hartnell's spirit and determination left no question in the minds of the spectators that the Panthers as a team were much superior to the Wolf Pack, despite M.P.C.'s many highly reputed individual players. Obviously it was a team effort of 26 men and their three hard-working coaches that did the impossible of humbling the powerful Lobos.

Monterey won the toss and elected to receive. Lou Bertelli's deceptive flat-on-the-turf kickoff was returned by Larry Segovia to the midfield stripe. However, Ken VanCleave recovered a backfield fumble, giving the ball to the Harts on the M.P.C. 45-yard line. A sustained drive brought the porkhide to the Monterey 4, where the ball squirted out of Don Benedetti's hands, immediately being pounced upon by an alert Lobo lineman. The Wolf Pack kicked to their

The score was knotted at 7-all as Segovia lofted ball between the uprights. With seconds remaining in the half Valli skied an aerial to Grant who had slipped behind the Lobo A last-ditch tackle halted the fleeting Grant on the Monterey 15-yard line. The clock showed three seconds to play but the gun sounded before a play could get underway; the mud-smeared squads left the grimy field with a 7-7 deadlock on the giant scoreboard.

Midway in the third quarter, Jim
Hare passed in the flat to Vince Bevilacqua, a converted Lobo tackle, who lateraled to the shifty Segovia; Segovia hipped his way to the Hart 18. Two plays later, the Monterey flash ripped off tackle and danced into the end zone. Segovia deftly added the extra point amid the tumult of cheers.

In the final quarter Hartnell began rolling again. Valli passed 30 yards to Grant on the Lobo 42. The Monterey defense tightened up, with a fourth down facing him, valli connected with Bob Heinzen for a first down on the 25-yard stripe. This play proved itself to be the climax of the drive as Valli again hit—this one to National Property of the prepare in preagain hit—this one to Norman target. Cage Season

Now that football here at Hartnell has had its "happy" ending, sports-minded students will turn their interests towards basketball. Ledgerwood, Nick Kralj, and John the squad, through its hard work, has shown great promise and will and guards: George Chin, Wayne most likely be a contender for the conference title.

The team is highlighted by the return of three "starters" from last year's team. These veterans, namely, Bob Ballard, Bob Steinbach, and Tom Welch, will have ample opportunity to demonstrate the experience they gained in league play last season. Ballard, a guard last year, will be occupying Fred Willson's center spot, which is a new challenge to him. Bob is a clever ball handler and will keep the opposition guessing.

Six-foot-three-inch Bob Steinbach will be back at forward and is both a shooting and rebounding threat. Bob may prove to be our most aggressive man off the boards. Welch, an outstanding guard last season, will handle his same spot this year. Tom is an exceptionally fine set shot and drives through nicely when points are needed.

Newcomers seeking starting posi-tions include many talented ball players. Forwards: Bob Adams, Jim Crook, Paul Heinrichs, Mike Melnyyk, Tony Russo, Bob Swan, and Elmer Valli. These newcomers combined with the veterans should form a fast and aggressive Panther five.

The squad had one impressive scrimmage with a Fort Ord team and will meet a Watsonville High challenge tonight. The "high schoolers" will be no easy push-over, as they will be all out to defeat their "aged" opponents. Tony Russo will be playing against his brother Johnny, who is one of the Wildcats' key men. Both Russo and Kralj were former Watsonville High basketball players. The probable starting lineup will be:

Forward, Bob Adams Forward, Bob Steinbach Center, Bob Ballard Guard, Bob Swan or Tony Russo Guard, Tom Welch.

Richard Cimino Will Star in Christmas Play

Richard Cimino, formerly of the Hartnell College Players, and the San Francisco Repertoire Theater, and now stationed at Fort Ord with the United States Army, has been permitted to accept the lead role of Scrooge in the Yule production of his alma mater, "Christmas Carol."

Cimino, known as Rick Conway Dale Swire in San Francisco, has made numerous television and radio appear ances both before and during his army career. He and other cast members have been rehearsing since Tuesday, November 13; and will appear in the production December 13, 14, and 15.
